

Linear Reduction

An art process where one medium becomes the muse for another medium.

The subject matter remains static and may evolve to a place that is unrecognizable. The approach continuously refines content from one medium to the next and is not constrained by reduction limits.

Bodies of work emerge independent and can naturally connect as a group.